Trinity Hunt Partners Announces Acquisition Of Castlewood Treatment Center

Castlewood Treatment Center Marks Initial Investment in Trinity Hunt's Growth Strategy on Behavioral Health Industry

Dallas – July 9, 2008 – Trinity Hunt Partners, a leading Dallas-based private equity firm, has announced its acquisition of Castlewood Treatment Center, one of the country's premier providers of acute eating disorder treatment services, based in St. Louis, Mo. Trinity Hunt has partnered with Dr. Mark Schwartz and Lori Galperin, Licensed Clinical Social Worker (LSCW), who are both directors of Castlewood, to recapitalize the treatment center.

Trinity Hunt's investment in Castlewood represents the firm's entrance into behavioral health and its focus on an organic and add-on acquisition strategy in the industry. Trinity Hunt has made a $25 million commitment to this strategy.

"Trinity Hunt is excited to invest in a treatment center of this caliber, and to partner with Dr. Mark Schwartz and Lori Galperin, who are highly regarded clinicians with extensive experience in treating individuals suffering from eating disorders and psychological trauma," said Pete Stein, a partner with Trinity Hunt. "After studying the behavioral health sector for well over a year, Trinity Hunt is confident that we are backing a superior team and platform to create a national network of high-quality residential treatment centers."

Castlewood offers a continuum of care through residential treatment, day treatment and intensive outpatient services. Castlewood's eating-disorder program follows clients closely for one year post-treatment to maximize long-term lifestyle change. Castlewood is located on 15 acres surrounded by a state park in suburban St. Louis.

"The partnership with Trinity Hunt will provide the expansion and development of Castlewood's program, which focuses on intensive treatment for clients with acute physical and psychological conditions," Galperin said.

"The eating disorder and trauma sectors are currently underserved by the healthcare industry," said Dr. Schwartz. "Castlewood, for example, has a waiting list of more than double our current capacity. Looking forward, we plan to open similar facilities in areas of the country with the greatest need to help improve quality of care for those suffering from eating disorders."
