

Trinity Hunt Realizes Investment in DMX MUSIC

Dallas – July 6, 2006 – Trinity Hunt Partners is pleased to announce the successful exit of its investment in Austin, Texas-based DMX MUSIC, a leading provider of digital music and visual imaging programming to businesses. The realization resulted in a substantial gain for its investors within 13 months from the date of investment.

The realization was made possible as a result of several asset dispositions, including the sale of DMX’s international assets, as well as enhanced cash flow from operational improvements. The resulting cash build-up permitted DMX Music to pursue a recapitalization in which Trinity Hunt’s investment was completely redeemed by the company.

“Trinity Hunt was an excellent partner for DMX,” said Steve Hicks, Chairman and CEO of DMX Music. “Together we were able to implement initiatives that quickly added value for DMX and all of the investors.”

After the acquisition, DMX Music successfully executed several value-added strategies, including streamlining operations through headcount reductions and facility consolidations, reducing capital spending, improving customer retention, enhancing working capital management and divesting non-core operations.

“We are pleased that our original investment thesis on the value-added strategies proved up so quickly,” said Dan Dross, partner of Trinity Hunt Partners. “DMX is now well positioned for continued growth and success under the stewardship of the current management team.”

In June 2005, Trinity Hunt joined with Steve Hick’s Capstar Partners to acquire the assets of DMX Music for $72.5 million. Prior to the acquisition, DMX Music was majority-owned by Liberty Media Corporation (NYSE: L).
